You could order your fish prepared simply at seafood restaurant Third Coast Provisions: just fish, sauce and seasonal greens. But I put my trust in chef-owner Andrew Miller, who in spring gave halibut the glory it deserves, with fennel, orange and risotto seasoned with vadouvan, the French curry blend, plus peas and lemon-mint aioli. Seafood includes everything from oysters (raw or chargrilled) to rich preparations for lobster. Expect modern cocktails and a number of boutique wines from the bar. Add attentive service and a gorgeous restaurant, and this feels like a special night out. For something more casual, head downstairs to the restaurant's Oak & Oyster raw bar for snacks and a weekly po' boy. Reviewed by: Carol Deptolla
